CHAPTER TITLE GENERAL	RESOURCES
SUBJECT INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT PLAN	CROSS REFERENCE

I. Purpose:

The purpose of this policy is to establish the guidelines for cultivating an Individual Development Plan with the sworn and non-sworn full-time JJC personnel of the Sarpy County Sheriff's Office.

II. Policy:

The Sarpy County Sheriff's Office views its employee's professional development as a priority. In order to enhance employee's professional growth, the agency has implemented an Individual Development Plan (IDP), which seeks to provide each sworn and non-sworn employee with an individually tailored strategy targeting their personal career goals while also enhancing the overall effectiveness of the agency. IDP's are not binding contracts and are only viewed as a career development partnership between an employee and their supervisor(s). IDP's shall not be used in any disciplinary processes.

III. Definitions:

A. Individual Development Plan: Identifies individual employee's professional needs such as training and career development. IDP's also assist in identifying an employee's goals, strengths, and future needs, while also recognizing the agency's overall mission, goals and objectives. IDP's are historical documents that shall be retained throughout an employee's employment as a means of providing ongoing career development.

B. Self-Assessment Worksheet: A document containing a series of questions designed to assist an employee formulate their professional goals.

C. Individual Development Plan Worksheet: A document designed to consolidate the information from the Self-Assessment Worksheet into a condensed format.

IV. Procedures:

A. All sworn and non-sworn full-time JJC personnel shall complete the biannual (twice per year) IDP process.

B. Personnel shall complete the biannual IDP process with their immediate supervisor. Those individuals who have transfers pending shall complete the IDP process with their pending supervisor.

C. The information contained within and IDP shall be made available to other supervisor's/command officers at the employee's discretion.

D. Part-time JJC personnel may participate in the biannual IDP process. Participation must be approved by their division commander.

E. The employee may update the information contained within an IDP at any time.

F. Command officers/supervisors shall ensure that personnel under their direct supervision have completed the IDP process.

G. Frequency: The IDP process will take place biannually within the agency. The first will take place from November - January, and the second in June. The IDP bi-annual process shall take place as follows:

1. November: Division commanders shall set goals for their assigned division for the upcoming year. Those goals shall be provided to all agency personnel.

2. December: Supervisors/command officers shall discuss the IDP process and the divisional goals with their assigned personnel. Supervisors/command officers and employees will also:

a) Identify knowledge, skills, and abilities (KSAs) or competencies required by the current work assignment.

b) Review and discuss strengths and areas for development in performing the current work assignment.

3. Employees shall also be instructed to complete the Self-Assessment Worksheet along with the employee areas of the IDP Worksheet. Employees shall have these two documents completed and returned to their immediate supervisor by December 31st.

4. For those employees being transferred to different divisions/units, the IDP process shall take place with their newly assigned supervisor or division command officer.

5. By January 15th: Supervisors/command officers shall meet to discuss the Self-Assessment Worksheet and employee areas of the IDP Worksheet. Using the worksheet as a guide the supervisor/command officer and employee will draft a plan by identifying developmental activities needed to reach the IDP goals. The discussion should include:

a) Identify goals and competencies to be developed during the specified period.

b) Identify developmental experiences that address the competencies.

c) Define measures of success.

d) Identify how the supervisor can support the employee.

e) Identify potential barriers to success.

f) Draft an IDP proposing and scheduling possible developmental activities.

6. By January 31st: Supervisors/command officers and employee shall meet again to go over the plan, modify it as necessary, determine what will be needed to move forward, and complete the supervisor/command officer area of the IDP worksheet. When reviewing the IDP the supervisor/command officer and employee should make sure:

a) Knowledge, skills, and abilities have been identified that are important to the employee's success.

b) Developmental activities are realistic, considering the division's needs, budget, and staffing.

c) Developmental activities are the best possible options for learning what the employee needs.

d) Specific activities and schedules have been identified for each goal allowing the employee to continue to carry a fair share of the workload and perform it satisfactorily.

e) Development activities identified in the IDP are actually realistic.

7. Once the supervisor/command officer and employee have agreed on the contents of the IDP it shall be signed by both, and enacted.

8. In June the supervisor/command officer and employee shall meet to determine if the IDP is meeting the developmental needs of the employee and agency. The supervisor/command officer and the employee shall review the IDP worksheet and revise as necessary.

H. Assessment Information: The information contained within an IDP shall only be used during promotional or specialty unit interviews at the employee's discretion. It shall be the responsibility of the employee to provide and present the IDP documents to the interviewers.

I. Retention: IDP's are considered historical documents designed to follow an employee throughout their career. Their retention shall be in either a paper or computerized format as determined by the Administrative Division.
